2022 Division President's Message

Matt Dullaghan

Worthy Hibernian Brothers:

I hope each of you has had a wonderful Christmas, and I wish for each of us a prosperous and gratifying New Year. We have elected a strong slate of officers, who will be formally installed this Thursday.

I would be remiss if I did not take a moment to remember our brother Jim Calpin, who was also my neighbor for over 20 years. I was touched that so many were able to come to his visitation and funeral Mass, while others were able to attend the service livestream. Jim was a hard working brother who also served loyally as Division secretary and treasurer. He embodied the spirt of AOH, taking pride in his heritage and his faith, and he was always ready to help out wherever he could. He will be greatly missed.

The core of our chapter, as always, is our members. Please continue to be alert to any opportunities to introduce Hibernians, and our Division, to many good Irishmen who often need only an invitation to join us. Each of us needs only to be welcoming to the future members we will meet.

Raffle ticket sales are officially underway, although we are still in search of a ticket sales chair. We will have new challenges balancing on-line sales with a possible return to live sales in the parishes.

I have enjoyed our Division's presentations on Irish history, and I am hopeful we will be able to continue both the formal talks and the briefer highlights at the monthly meetings. Please share any ideas you may have for further presentations, and we will make them happen.

Finally, I encourage all of us to help build the bonds of brotherhood in the coming year. Please attend our regular monthly meetings, they are

A Bit of Irish History

The Celtic Cross

The Celtic cross is a form of Christian cross featuring a nimbus or ring that emerged in Ireland, France and Great Britain in the Early Middle Ages. A type of ringed cross, it became widespread through its use in the stone high crosses erected across the islands, especially in regions evangelized by Irish missionaries, from the ninth through the 12th centuries.

A staple of Insular art, the Celtic cross is essentially a Latin cross with a nimbus surrounding the intersection of the arms and stem. Scholars have debated its exact origins, but it is related to earlier crosses featuring rings. The form gained new popularity during the Celtic Revival of the 19th century; the name "Celtic cross" is a convention dating from that time. The shape, usually decorated with interlace and other motifs from Insular art, became popular for funerary monuments and other uses, and has remained so, spreading well beyond Ireland.

Ringed crosses similar to older Continental forms appeared in Ireland and Scotland in incised stone slab artwork and artifacts. like the Ardagh chalice. However, the shape achieved its greatest popularity by its use in the monumental stone high crosses, a distinctive and widespread form of Insular art. These monuments, which first appeared in the ninth century, usually (though not always) take the form of a ringed cross on a stepped or pyramidal base. The form has obvious structural advantages, reducing the length of unsupported side arms. There are a number of theories as to its origin in Ireland and Britain. Some scholars consider the ring a holdover from earlier wooden crosses, which may have required struts to support the crossarm. Others have seen it as deriving from indigenous Bronze Age art featuring a wheel or disc around a head, or from early Coptic crosses based on the ankh. However, Michael W. Herren, Shirley Ann Brown, and others believe it originates in earlier ringed crosses in Christian art. Crosses with a ring representing the celestial sphere developed from the writings of the Church Fathers. The "cosmological cross" is an important motif in Coelius Sedulius's poem Carmen Paschale, known in Ireland by the seventh century.

It is not clear where the first high crosses originated. The first examples date to about the ninth century and occur in two groups: at Ahenny in Ireland, and at Iona, an Irish monastery off the Scottish coast. The Ahenny group is generally earlier. However, it is possible that St. Johns Cross at Iona was the first high cross; Iona's influence as a center of pilgrimage may have led this cross to inspire the Ahenny group as well as other ringed crosses in Pictish stones.

Our Division History

The Msgr. Charles Kelly, Jr. Division of the Ancient Order of Hibernians was formed in December, 2009 and conducted it's first meeting on January 21, 2010 at St. John Neumann Church, Powhatan, Virginia. The next few meetings were taken up with election of officers and the many procedural items needed to get our group started.

Since that time we continue to grow, adding new members and supporting and donating to Catholic schools and Churches in the area, in line with our commitment to Friendship, Unity and Christian Charity.
